The Emperor conferred the Order of the Red Eagle of the third class upon Abbott Lawrence Rotch of Boston.

Abbott Lawrence Rotch was a member of the International Aeronautical Commission, which met in Berlin in May, 1902, when the commission passed a resoltuion approving his plan for the atmospheric conditions above the Atlantic ocean. Rotch told the commission that he had applied to the Carnegle Institute at Washington for $10,-

It was learned last night from members of the Carnegie Institute in Washington that the request of Abbott Rotch of Boston for the appropriation was not granted.
